Prof JJ Henning

“After more than 30 years in practice, this still seems to be the right career choice.”
– Extraordinary Professor, Honourable Judge SPB Hancke.

Only studies in Law (LLB) offer a choice of 75 career possibilities, such as the professions of attorney and advocate, other legal practitioners (prosecutors, magistrates, judges, commissioners, etc.), labour law consultants, and legal advisors in the banking, military, state departments, insurance and corporate world.

Dean of the faculty: Prof JJ Henning

Studying law in the judicial capital of South Africa means that our students do not only get a thorough grounding in legal theory, but also a sound practical foundation.

WHY STUDY LAW AT KOVSIES?

This Faculty of Law is rated among the best in the country. Its location in the judicial capital, Bloemfontein, exposes law students to the practice of law in the lower and higher divisions of the courts.

The expertise of judges and legal practitioners is shared with the learners. The high academic standard of the Faculty of Law has always been its pride.

Successful attendance at the School for Legal Practice (Free State) after obtaining an LLB degree shortens the period of articles of candidate attorneys. Furthermore, the faculty provides compulsory practical legal training in the Law Clinic, which gives the Kovsie law students an additional advantage. This faculty offers a unique opportunity of study at national as well as international level because of the close ties that this faculty has with international universities and their various exchange programmes. Every student is enabled to specialise in his/her field of interest with the wide range of electives at undergraduate and postgraduate levels. All students of law must have proven reading, writing and numerical skills to succeed in the legal career. The faculty hosts a number of specialised centres and units, such as the Centre for Business Law, Centre for Financial Planning Law, Centre for Estate Planning Law, Centre for Judicial Excellence and Unit for Children's Rights, just to mention a few.

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

The Faculty of Law at the University of the Free State produces a number of sought-after graduates annually. An active placement programme for graduates into suitable positions, managed within the faculty, ensures a good future for the successful student who makes use of this opportunity. The School for Legal Practice (Free State), where graduates receive further vocational training, also actively facilitates the placement of candidate attorneys in vacancies. A legal qualification, however, does not mean that you are limited to becoming either an advocate or an attorney. Many jurists follow successful careers in other professions.

Career opportunities and employers include:

Advocates • Clerks of the High Court
 Legal Academics • Legal Aid Board and Arbitration
 Public Protector • Registrars of the High Court •
 South African Law Commission • South African Police Service • Human Rights Commission
 Commission for Conciliation, Mediation and Arbitration • Directors of Public Prosecution (State

DESCRIPTION OF MODULES

Mercantile Law

The field of Mercantile Law encompasses that section of the law that deals with aspects relating to the world of trade and commerce.

Specific modules in Mercantile Law include, among others:

- Instruments of Payment Law, dealing with cheques, travellers' cheques, etc.
- Law of Business Enterprises, where students learn about partnerships, close corporations, companies and trusts and how these entities function in the legal world.
- Labour Law, which has become an absolute necessity for any entrepreneur or manager – this field grows more important each day and encompasses all the rules applicable to the relationship between employers and employees.
- Tax Law, which deals with what is owed to the Revenue Service and when and why to pay it.
- Insurance Law, where students find out more about items and interests that can be insured, as well as how the law functions to treat the insurer and the insured fairly.
- International Economic Law, which introduces students to the field of international trade transactions and the international protection of investments.
- Insolvency and Liquidation Law, where students will learn about dissolving business ventures due to insolvency and also how to sequester the estates of persons.
- Mercantile contracts, insurance and consumer law, where students are introduced to the law applicable to day-to-day commercial transactions.

Private Law

Private Law is that section of the law that governs the relationship between persons, and covers such aspects of society as births and deaths, marriages, contracts, property and succession. In the field of private law, the following modules are offered in the LLB degree:

- Family Law, in which students learn more about engagements, the Marriages Act, community of property and the general principles applicable to divorce and child maintenance and custody.
- Law of Persons, where students obtain knowledge of legal subjects and their origin and status – this refers to when the law will recognise you as a living person who is capable of concluding transactions.
- Law of Succession and Administration of Estates deals with the contents of wills, how people inherit when there is no will and the administration of the estates of deceased persons.
- Law of Property, in which students learn about the difference between possession and ownership, and what it means to be the holder of a right in property – also in terms of the Constitution.
- The Law of Delict, which deals with the negligent or purposeful causation of damage and the remedies available to the wronged party.
- The Law of Contract is one of the most important courses in legal studies and is studied extensively to prepare students for practice.
- Private Law further encompasses such fields as Enrichment, Estoppel, Road Accident Fund, Sectional Title, Law of Damages and the Law of Trusts.

Criminal and Medical Law

Criminal Law is that section of the law that deals with what constitutes a crime, and when and how persons who commit crimes should be punished. Medical Law or Medicina Forensis, in turn, deals with the narrow interaction that exists between medicine and the law on all levels. Modules in these fields include:

- Criminal Law, which encompasses the general requirements to be satisfied before an act will be viewed as a crime, and the specific requirements set for certain crimes such as murder, public violence, robbery and assault; and
- Medical Law, in which students will be introduced to controversial legal issues such as euthanasia, sex changes, negligent medical practices and much more.

Roman Law, Legal History and Comparative Law (part of Department of Private Law)

This field comprises the entire origin and background of the South African Legal System and includes a thorough study of the following modules:

- Legal history, which includes the history of the Roman Law, the development of this law in the west of Europe and the eventual introduction of Roman Dutch Law into South Africa as the common law.
- Roman Law, in which students are introduced to the law of succession, law of persons, criminal law, procedural law and family law of the ancient Romans.
- Comparative Law, which comprises the study of law utilising the comparative method of legal research and the application of this method on selected themes in South African law.

Procedural Law and Law of Evidence

Procedural law focuses mainly on the procedures followed to enforce the law and it forms part of the formal law.

Modules within this discipline include:

- Criminal Procedure, which governs the prosecution, hearing and sentencing of transgressors. It prescribes principles for summons, arrest, search, forfeiture, taking persons into custody, escape from custody, bail pleas and the court process.
- The Law of Civil Procedure, which introduces students to the jurisdiction of various courts, the procedures that may be followed in civil disputes, judgement, appeal and review.
- Legal Practice, in which academics and practitioners train students in the management of a law office and the management of cases and clients. This course is essential preparation for practice.
- The Law of Evidence is that part of the formal law that prescribes the way in which a case or aspects of a case must be proved legally in a court of law. Primarily this discipline deals with the sources of the law of evidence, burden of proof, relevance, admissibility of evidence, character evidence and other aspects such as expert evidence, hearsay, privilege, admissions and confessions. The presentation of evidence, forms of real and documentary evidence and the influence of the Constitution are also dealt with.

CODE OF ETHICS FOR LAW STUDENTS:

I pledge loyalty to the Constitution of the Republic of South Africa and undertake to respect its laws and to maintain and develop its legal system.

I shall observe all the rules and regulations of the University of the Free State and the Faculty of Law.

I shall maintain high moral and ethical standards.

I shall strive towards ensuring that my actions are always in the interest of the public and directed towards improving the good name of the University and the faculty.

I shall uphold the dignity, traditions and culture of the legal profession.

My behaviour shall be such that at all times I may be regarded as a person fit and suitable to be admitted as a legal practitioner.

As a prospective jurist, I shall display impeccable honesty at all times.

I shall maintain a high standard of integrity.

I shall act objectively, fairly and without bias.

I shall employ my working potential to the full.

I bind myself to the code of conduct of the University and the faculty and to any disciplinary measures, should I fail to comply with my commitment to this code.

If a student fails to comply with the above-mentioned code, it could result in suspension of all legal studies at the University of the Free State or in that a certificate of good conduct, required for admission to all legal professions, be refused.
