Beskrywing / Description	The project attempts to develop community members' economic literacy by first testing (by means of a questionnaire) and then contribute to people's understanding of key concepts in International economics (also including basic economic concepts such as interest rates, exchange rates, economic growth, trade, etc.). Participating in group-format, students design the questionnaires and go themselves out into the community and speak with people they themselves identify, and then they record the data gathered from that in the form of an assignment, which also includes proper analysis and discussion of the results.
